KEY TECHNOLOGY

The 460cc titanium head is designed with forgiveness as the main priority. Weight has been added in the perimeter of the deep head to help improve stability at impact and produce straighter drives.

WILL SUIT

- Those who like to see a huge head at address
- Anyone who wants a high level of performance without having to pay a premium price tag

GM TEST REPORT

Few drivers look as powerful as this at address and the feel at impact didn't disappoint – for a comparison, think Cleveland HiBore. Unusually this features a low-profile face. Any fears about this disappeared as it sat very neatly behind the ball.

GM VERDICT

- +
- The performance on offer was incredible considering the price tag. We were impressed by the distance created.
- The R-flex shaft we tested seemed to deliver excess spin meaning the flight was too high. Whilst this would work well for those with slow swing speeds, faster swingers will need to take care over shaft selection.

PGA PRO VERDICT

Another solid product from MD. Everything you need here for a game improvement driver. The 10.5° model I tested was generous in loft at address, and it sat square – a nice touch that will help it appeal to the better player. The head design was very traditional, a feature you might expect carrying the Seve name. Ball flight and launch was high, as expected, and the strike felt solid. Off-centre hits still produced good numbers on test with a launch monitor.
